According to a recent note culled from Walter Winchell, "If spies want to get a list of agents in CIA, all they have to do is buy a copy of the Social Register". In a minor way, the same thing can almost be said of the Ivy Club. I am astonished at the number of ties I see cropping up in various corners of this Agency, and am even considering trying to get my worn-out one out of the mothballs of my Arizona ranch house cellar.

Bill has given me your letter about [redacted] and I am writing him at Bill's suggestion requesting an interview at his earliest convenience. He sounds like the type we would like to interest in a possible intelligence career with us. I hope you can continue to dig up more like him, but don't think you have to confine yourself to the Ivy Club!

Incidentally, Bill has told me that there's an Ivy man called [redacted] that we ought to try very hard to interest in coming down to our shop. Is there any chance that he might be interested?
